ABILITYWORKS

Potential Sponsor,

At Ability Works, we have served individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD) in our area for over 45 years by providing day services, homemaker/personal care services, transportation, employment services, and a Sensory Space. We need support from people like you to continue providing these much needed services.

We are hosting our annual talent show and dinner this year and are looking for sponsorships and raffle baskets. Our annual We've Got Talent is a night for individuals with IDD to show off their talents and enjoy a night out with their families. The entire dinner is donated so that all proceeds from event tickets, 50/50, and our raffle go directly towards our services.

Sponsoring Ability Works, means supporting the goals and dreams of individuals with IDD. We help individuals with daily care, finding a job, and transportation. We also help them attend events, ball games and more that they otherwise may not have had the chance to go to.

We hope that you choose to support not only our services, but a fun night out for individuals with IDD. Whether you're a sponsor, or donate a raffle basket, it is all needed.

Sincerely,

Courtney Spencer

Gen-X in Recovery: How "Latchkey Kids" Are Overcoming Challenges

Thursday, January 26, 12:00 PM - 1:00 PM EST

While addiction does not discriminate, each generation does face unique challenges in recovery. Gen X is no different.

Born between 1965 and 1980, Gen Xers in recovery can experience challenges like childcare, insurance, health concerns, job readiness, and other issues more acutely than younger people in recovery.

Topics covered will include:

- Key news and events shaping Gen-X as they grew up
- Alcohol and drug usage trends across generations
- Which issues impact Gen-X more acutely and why
- How understanding these differences can help you meet your patients where they are and improve your support of all patients
- Open forum for participants to ask questions

Black Americans in Recovery: Addressing Racial Challenges in Addiction Treatment

Thursday, February 16, 12:00 PM - 1:00 PM EST

The impact of substance and alcohol use disorders on Black Americans is a complex issue. Understanding it requires an examination of racial inequity, inequality, and racism. Research shows long-held stereotypes about race and addiction are impacting access to treatment and patient outcomes. It is critical for the behavioral health community to discuss these differences.

Topics covered will include:

- Black American drug and alcohol usage trends vary across age and sex;
- Bias and stigma affect treatment access and patient outcomes;
- Systemic racism and trauma contribute to treatment disparities between races;
- Understanding this complex issue can impact recovery outcomes
- Open forum for participants to ask questions
